

Leading Torrance Men List Virtues of Torrance Woman of the Year

If she does, she will contribute her share in helping our society to improve and perpetuate itself."

The Rev. William K. Schatz, 5342 Sharynne Lane, pastor of the Seaside Community Church.

"I believe she would be a woman of integrity, one who is willing to listen freely and speak with discrimination. A woman who keeps her house in order, a woman whose mind and heart are alive to the needs of others. A woman who has these qualities and yet possesses a humble graciousness."

William Fredericks, 820 Fonthill Ave., president of the Holy Name Society:

"A person so nominated would be an excellent homemaker, possess a high moral character, be neat and amiable, and have a fine personality. She would be capable of adjusting to various groups and hold a distinguished position in the community."

The Rabbi H. E. Front, 4154 Via Lado, of the Temple Menorah, Redondo Beach:

"I believe she would be a good wife and mother, a member of a religious body, and active in the community. However, not necessarily a clubwoman, because club work in itself offers a kind of reward. Rather, a woman who will work without fanfare or recognition."

Cliff Graybehl, 1122 Maple St., board member of the Torrance YMCA:

"She should be an established resident, interested in community affairs, one who has a pride in Torrance. She should be the type of person one is proud to know."

Carl Ahee, 18819 Yukon, principal of Torrance High School:

"A woman with a personal graciousness. One who is morally and spiritually good. One who is a leader in her community and works to better it."

J. H. Paget, 1329 Arlington St., president of the Torrance Chamber of Commerce:

"A woman of the year should possess charm and sincerity, and have achieved some major accomplishment during the last year either in her home or in the community."
